How many times have you started a PowerPoint presentation and then realized you needed to use a different template? Fortunately, there's an easy way to copy over the theme from one presentation to another.. Windows media player for mac I want to copy a textbox from one slide 3 and paste it in slide 2.. Go to the View menu and click the Arrange All button so you can see both at the same time: Now, select the source deck (pictured at right below) and then click on the thumbnail of the slide you want to copy the theme from.

 I followed instruction from a page I found: presentation Slides[3 + 1] Shapes[2 + 1].. I don't see the clipboard is empty In fact I can paste it on the word and see what it was - One time it was a blank picture and another a gray shade which are in that slide..

So in general I have two problem: how to know which shade I should copy out and why doesn't c# allow copying a shape and paste it in another? Also I'm wondering if there is a complete or official library or tutorial for operating on powerpoint in c# other than that on ms website which is completely useless.. But you can apply the format to all slides of an existing presentation if needed.. Once selected, click the Format Painter icon directly above it on the Ribbon: Now click on the destination deck and then click the thumbnail of the slide you want to receive the theme: You may need to click twice: Once to select the target deck and a second time to apply the format to the thumbnail. This technique works best if you use it on a new presentation, since all new pages will be based on the new theme.. This works in both PowerPoint 2007 and PowerPoint 2010 First, open both your source and destination documents (and close any others if more decks are open).. Click on that slide (on the far right hand side of the screen) I'm a newbie in c# programming and I'm just confounded by the entire ms office library.. First select the place you want that slide to go (for example click beneath slide 2 on the left hand side of the screen). 6e4e936fe3 Acer Aspire One Ao751H Camera Driver For Mac
